Small Vote On the Bylaw

The vote on the money bylaw, which is being put through the council for the purpose of raising funds with which to build the sidewalk to West Coleman, took place on Tuesday of this week. There were 37 votes cast in favor of the bylaw and only one voter cast his ballot against the proposition. Approximately 250 persons were entitled to vote on this bylaw, but as above stated only 38 took the trouble to do so. This is a pretty small percentage indeed.

Another very interesting feature of the election, is the fact that while the proposed sidewalk will be a great boon to the people of West Coleman, yet scarcely half a dozen ratepayers took the trouble to cast a vote in favor of the scheme.

Wanted—Woman or girl for general servant. Apply to Mrs. R. L. Norman.

In the final count in the piano contest, which closed on Saturday evening last, Miss Annie Pisony had 7,351,965 votes. Mrs. Grant Downing 3,999,890, and Miss Agnes Hogan 2,650,270.

Did you ever try to answer all the questions an inquisitive kid could ask? Did you ever try to convince your wife that a new hat was a luxury—not a necessity? Did you ever try to carry a red hot stove down a winding stair? Did you, neighbor, did you ever? Well, any of these tasks would be easy compared with this job of moving—and trying to get out a live newspaper at one and the same time. Talk about the tribulations of Job! Shucks?

The spokes in the wheels of the racing recluses by the local fire brigade having become somewhat bent and loosened, the question of the cost of having them put in proper shape again was taken up with a Winnipeg firm. It was thus discovered that if the wheels were sent to the Gateway City for repair it would involve an expenditure of about sixty dollars. "Nothing doing," declared Chief Graham, and he tackled the job himself. He is now overhauling this portion of the local fire apparatus.

The Easter services in the Institutional church on Sunday last were of an impressive and inspiring character, both morning and evening. At the latter service a choir of eighteen voices sang the anthems, "King of Kings" and "Glorious is Thy Name," with exceptional ability at the commencement and towards the close of the service. Each rendition gave evidence of much painstaking practice, while the solo in the first named anthem was rendered in a clear, rich voice of compass by Miss Mary McAuley and in a manner which few professional singers could outclass. The choir, together with their leader and organist, were to be congratulated on the genuine appreciation of their efforts by the congregation. In keeping with such an inspiring service of praise, the pastor, Rev. T. M. Murray, delivered a capable and eloquent sermon on "Our Exalted Lord." Among other points which he handled in a practical way, Mr. Murray spoke strongly and feelingly on the profanity of the present day, making special allusion to young boys who have become addicted to the nefarious habit.

Football Here This Evening

In the benefit football match played on the athletic grounds here last Saturday evening between the Hillcrest aggregation and the Coleman team, the latter won out by a score of 3-0. The game was a good exhibition of football and some good combination work was put in by players on both sides. Fines, Kellock and Muir did the scoring. As advertised, this was a benefit game, and the announcement is made that the gate receipts totalled $28.75.

A football team from Frank will try their skill against the Coleman boys next Saturday evening, April 18th, on the grounds here. This will also be a benefit game, and the kick-off will take place at six o'clock sharp. The admission fee will be 25c, as usual, and a good crowd of supporters is expected to see the game.

Through an oversight, a change of advertisement for the H. G. Goodeve Co., Limited, was omitted last week. In this advertisement attention was drawn to a particularly choice assortment of fishing tackle, flies, etc., and also a consignment of English bicycles. These goods are all of the very best quality, and Bulletin readers would do well to look over this stock. Note change of advt. this week.

Form Junior Fire Brigade

Chief Graham of the fire department is taking steps to organize a junior brigade in Coleman and any boy between the ages of fourteen and eighteen who would like to join this new organization should leave his name with Mr. Graham at once. The idea of a junior brigade is good one and its benefits will be at least two-fold. By this means a course of instruction will be given the boys that will be decidedly useful and helpful to them later on when they are old enough to become members of the town's fire brigade, and also they will get a good deal of systematic exercise.

The junior brigade will be drilled exactly the same as the seniors, except that in the case of the former lighter equipment will be used. As above stated, names must be handed to Chief Graham at once.

A smoking concert will be held in the opera house on Saturday evening, April 18th, under the auspices of the Football Club. Tickets $1.00.

Miss Mary McAuley left on Tuesday evening last for Ohio, where she will make her home with a brother who resides there. Miss McAuley will be greatly missed in musical circles here.

GREAT BRIDGES.

Facts of Great Structures Across the Tay and Forth

Not the least of the extraordinary feats of the retable bridge-builder, Sir William Arrol, was the fact that at one time he carried on two such gigantic contracts at the Tay and Forth Bridges. It was a striking tribute to his great powers of organization and to his genius for creating on a mammoth scale. The construction of the Tay Bridge was only half-finished when he made a start with the gigantic undertaking which now spans the Firth of Forth, from the designs of Sir John Fowler and Sir Benjamin Baker. Over a year was spent in the preliminary preparations alone—the designing and making of special plans, the erecting of workshops on shore and the thousands and one things essential to the success of such a large scheme. The cost of temporary plant ran to half-a-million sterling, and included thirty steam dredgers, barges, launches and boats, sixty steam cranes, five hydraulic cranes, forty-eight steam engines, and hydraulic machines almost innumerable, not to mention one million cubic feet of timber and six miles of wire. The enormous scale of the work was a source of wonder to the world as it gathered from the following figures: The total length is over a mile and a half, and consists of two spans, each nearly a third of a mile long. Two spans of six hundred and seventy-five feet each.
In the piers there are about one hundred and twenty thousand cubic yards of masonry, and in the super-structure over forty thousand tons of steel and some fifteen thousand tons of iron.

The building of the Tay Bridge was an opportunity for a display of his engineering genius which he met with bridges. Sir William Arrol was a rigorous examination revealed the old foundations to be insecure, and it was decided to build an entirely new bridge a short distance farther up the river. Within three years, from its commencement—1883 to 1887—a remarkable erection, over two miles in length, and constructed at a cost of seven hundred and fifty thousand pounds, spanned the estuary, a structure strong enough to defy the fiercest gale that ever blew. It was the greatest engineering triumph of the age, until it was eclipsed by a greater—the Forth Bridge.

Most infants are infested by worms, which cause great suffering, and not infrequently death, when the constitutional weakness is difficult to remedy. Miller's Worm Powders will clear the stomach and bowels of worms and will act upon the system that will be no recurrence of the trouble. And not only this, but they will repair the injury to the organs that worms cause and restore them to soundness.

but I heard his baying, so I ordered the tirade of strong remarks, telling us in no uncertain terms what she thought of us for molesting in gen-murderers of her dog. It was then that I thought I would pacify her.

Madam, I said, I will replace your tone of voice, you flatter yourself.

Genius Old Painter

It is told of Leonardo da Vinci that while still a pupil, before his genius burst into brilliancy, he received a special inspiration in this way.
His old and famous master, because of his growing infirmities of age felt obliged to give up his own work and one day gave Da Vinci a picture of a picture which he had begun. The young man had such reverence for his master's skill that he shook from the task. The old artist, however, would not accept any excuse, but persisted in his command, saying simply:
Do your best.

Da Vinci at last tremblingly seized the brush and, kneeling before the old, said the following prayer: It is for the sake of my beloved master that I implore skill and power for this undertaking. As he proceeded, his hand grew steady, his eye awoke with shimmering genius. He forgot himself and was filled with enthusiasm for his work.

When the painting was finished the old master was carried into the studio to pass judgment on the result. His eyes rested on a triumph of art.
Throwing his arms around the young artist, he exclaimed: My son, I paint no more.

Plan for a Larger Milk Yield What virtue is there in hereditary when it comes to abundant milk production per cow? Many a dairyman nurses a cow in good, her heifers may turn out good ones, and sometimes they do not. What is the trouble? Apart from such considerations as feed, care and health, look for one moment at the possible value of the sire. If the cows bred to a particular bull have dropped good milking progeny; if he has produced good ones for ancestry. There is the virtue of hereditary worth thousands of dollars to our dairy industry. The melancholy reflection is that scores of these good milkers can be traced to sires that have been sold for long long before their real value had become known.

Every dairyman who is doing anything at all, testing his milk, and and progressive dairyman appreciate the far reaching benefits of such study, know that it would be worth at least 1,200 pounds of milk extra per cow to secure the right bull. All members of cow testing associations should be interested. In the purchase of good pure bred sires, changing them round after two years in one section, and prove thereby the immense value of heredity in their own herds.

The Printer Pirates An instalment agent had sold an album to every man in the composing shop, and he was to deliver the and 25 cents a week, album delivered on the first payment. We all promptly sold or looked over the album and declined to pay the first weekly instalment. The agent as a last resort decided to complain to the foreman. He went into the shop about 3 p.m. and the foreman spied him as he entered the composing room.

Boys, said the boss printer in a tone loud enough for every one in the room to hear, why are we like this? We are all pirates. We have all given it up. Because, announced the boss, we'll give the album man the quarter.

The album man turned and left and we saw him no more.

A number of men gathered in the smoking car of a train from Little Rock to another point in Arkansas were talking of the food best calculated to sustain health.

One Arkansan, a stout, florid man, with short gray hair and a self-satisfied air, was holding forth in great style.

Look at me! he exclaimed. Never had a day's sickness in my life. All due to simple food. Why, genius, from the time I was twenty to when I reached forty I lived a regular life.
None of these effeminate delicacies summer and winter, I went to bed at 9; got up at 8. Lived principally on corned beef and corn bread. Worked hard, gentle—worked hard from 8 to 11. Then dinner; plain dinner; then house exercise, and then to bed.

Excuse me, interrupted the stranger, who had remained silent, but what were you in for?

A ring at the telephone drew the office boy.

Lady to talk to you sir, he said to the senior partner.

The senior partner took up the receiver and stood at the phone for several minutes. Then he laid the receiver down and went back to his desk.

Twenty minutes later the lady raised the receiver, said a few words and presently hung it up.

It was my wife, he explained, she was still talking and hadn't missed me.

WOMEN SING THE PRAISES OF
DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS

Saskatchewan Lady Adds Her Testimony to What Has Already Been Said of the Great Work Dodd's Kidney Pills are Doing.

Coeville, Sask. (Special)—The scarcity of female help in a new country subjects the women of the prairies to unusual strain, and careful observation has established the fact that this strain first makes itself felt in the kidneys. For this reason Dodd's Kidney Pills are making an enviable reputation from the Great Lakes to the foothills of the Rockies.

Everywhere you will find women singing the praises of the great Canadian kidney remedy that has banished their pains and weariness, and brought them back to health. Among the many is Mrs. Edgar Cowen, an esteemed lady of this place.

"I have found Dodd's Kidney Pills very beneficial," Mrs. Cowen states.
"If anything I can say will help any sufferer I am glad to add my testimony to what has already been said."

The kidneys strain all the refuse material out of the blood. If they fail out of order, the refuse remains in the blood, and becomes poison. That's why sound kidneys mean pure blood and good health. Dodd's Kidney Pills make sound kidneys.

Dining on Books
With the exception of minerals it is difficult to eat on the earth's surface substances that do not tempt the appetite of some sort of queer creature of diet includes the earth, which is manured with satisfaction by the clay eater, and the walrus hide, which the Eskimo refuses as much as John Bull his joint of beef.

It is not generally known, however, that men, as well as mice and worms, have their dinners that have consisted only of books.

In 1370 Barnardo de Visconti compelled two Papal delegates to eat the bull of excommunication which they had brought him, together with its eldest and longest seat. As the bull was written on parchment, not paper, it was all the more difficult to digest.

There was also an American general who had signed a note for 2,000 dollars, and when it fell due compelled him to eat it. It is the Tartars, when books fall into their possession, eat them, that they may acquire the knowledge contained in them.

A Scandinavian writer, the author of a political book, was compelled to swallow being beheaded of eating his manuscript bolted in broth.

Isaac Volmar, who wrote some spicy satires against the Duke of Saxony, was not allowed the courtesy of the kitchen, but was forced to swallow them.

Still worse was the fate of Philip Oldenburger, a jurist of great renown who wrote not only to eat, but a pamphlet of his writings, but also to be fogged during his repast with orders that the fogging should not be interrupted by a single swallow of last crumb.

Quotations That are Wrong
Some of the most frequently used quotations are not quotations at all, but in many cases convey the opposite meaning of the original.

Fenimore Cooper, for instance, thought he was quoting from the Bible when he spoke of an inscription which said: "He who runs may read, signifying that it was easier to run than read."

If Cooper had looked in his Bible he would have found in the book of Habakkuk that the passage he tried to quote said: "Write the vision and make it plain that he may run that readeth it. The vision was a warning; and the reader was to flee from danger, but the Cooper version had survived the original and practically put it out of use.

A popular chronic misquotation is that of the passage in Huidibras which says: He that complains against his will is of the same opinion still.
And the public speakers without number have twisted that into: A man convinced against his will is of the same opinion still. Forgetting that the man who was convinced could not possibly remain of the same opinion for if he was of the same opinion he would not be convinced.

Theodore Roosevelt publicly declared that Washington in his farewell address said: To be prepared for war is the most effective means to promote peace. But the first President said nothing of the sort in his farewell address. His last message to Congress he said: To be prepared for war is one of the most effective means of preserving peace, and he spoke of it in other terms as well.

Novellists do not seem to be very strong in their knowledge of the Scriptures somehow, and Sir Walter Scott, in "The Heart of Midlothian," attempts to point a moral with an order: Our simple and unpretending heroine had the merit of those peacemakers to whom it is promised as a punishment that they shall inherit the earth. The fact is that peacemakers do not receive any such promise, but it is said that the meek shall inherit the earth.

ONTARIO WOOD SUPPLIES

Light Thrown on Forest and Trade Conditions by New Government Bulletin

Over 1500 wood-using industries in Ontario contributed the data for a bulletin on this industry now being issued by the Forestry Branch, Ottawa.
Thirty four different kinds of wood are being used by these industries and the detailed information regarding the various uses to which such woods are put should be of considerable value not only to the manufacturer by showing new means of waste disposal, but also to the householder by indicating what native woods are best fitted to replace the more expensive imported woods for interior decoration, furniture and flooring.

The bulletin also shows incidentally the increasing poverty of Ontario with regard to the more valuable work woods. Almost half of the thirty-four kinds of wood used are obtained principally from outside sources and three and one half million dollars are annually sent out of the province for imported wood stock. The imported cost alone costs one million six hundred thousand dollars annually, for this tree has become commercially extinct in Ontario while the hickory and chestnut groves of southern Ontario have also, almost entirely disappeared. The good class of maple is becoming hard to obtain and its market value is steadily rising for it represents twenty-one per cent of the total wood consumption in Ontario for industrial purposes.

Of more interest to the small consumer of wood products are the suggestions of substituting cheap home-grown woods for the expensive foreign species now used so extensively.
Recent tests made of their physical properties have demonstrated the superiority of certain native species, hitherto despised by the dealers.
For hardwood flooring the place of the oak and maple is perhaps now in general use, may be substituted the home grown birch and beech which take a high polish and have the advantage of being considerably cheaper.

As to interior finishing, the expensive oak can be very closely imitated by the use of a good stain.
Stained birch is almost indistinguishable from mahogany, while stained and gum requires as expert to distinguish it from the costly Cirsianian walnut. The new expensive white pine is being replaced, where durability is not a requisite, by the cheaper spruce, basswood and elm. Poplar and balsam fir are two of the most valuable woods for interior finishing. They have wider uses is evident from the fact that poplar is highly valued for hardwood flooring in Manitoba and the supply of this species is the widely used native species in the Maritime provinces.

The bulletin also indicates the existence of a market in Ontario for some maple and cherry logs. The timber cut from them being worth $45.00 and $4.50 per thousand feet board measure respectively. The forestry branch has already been informed that the sale of the wood of worn out apple orchards and is desirous of further serving the public by the sale of the same.

The Wood-using Industries of Ontario can be had gratis from the Forestry Branch, Department of the Interior, Ottawa. A similar report dealing with the Maritime Provinces will appear shortly.

Correcting the Answer jury was gathered and shut up in a room after a brief trial, and when an

Potatoes and Power
One foresees the triumph of the po-

not so much as food, but as a means of motion. Coal is giving out; petrol is going up in price and down in production. The supply of both is limited and must come to an end, but there comes the cheer that alcohol will be the motive force of the future.
Petrol and coal may give out, but the earth will always grow potatoes. Potatoes can produce alcohol almost indefinitely. In the potato we seem to have discovered the secret of perpetual motion.

One foresees the triumph of the potato, unforeseen by William Cobett,
will be the motive force of the future.
secret of perpetual motion.

Real Gratitude Poets declare that the days of gay romance are dead—that there is no spirit of chivalry left in the braids of the men of modern times.
They are all wrong. Here we have the story of a dairyman who the man in Ohio left all his money to the girl who refused to marry him years ago. That's gratitude for you!

that the little boy next door gets pro-

A Sure Remedy
The story is told that when M.
Poincaré, the new president of the French Republic, first entered politics he was a simple and unpretending man with his youthfulness.

I may be young, M. Poincaré replied, but I promise you that I shall be here every day to wipe out that disadvantage.

Merely an Illustration of How Canadians Like to be Humbugged

The telegraphic despatches last week advised all and sundry that the Railway Commission had at last come to a decision in the time-worn freight rates matter and had ordered a reduction in freight rates west of the Great Lakes.

This intelligence has been hailed by the press of the country as a great boon to the people of these broad and wonderfully fertile prairies, and some newspapers even go so far as to express profound satisfaction over the fact that the railway companies, especially the C. P. R., have been thus "forced to take their medicine." And while The Bulletin is quite willing to give due credit for any enactment that is calculated to better the condition of the people generally, yet we cannot get away from the idea that this freight rates idea is merely a case of robbing Peter to pay Paul in a modern fashion.

Over a quarter of a century ago we Canadians commenced to give away our birthright in the shape of huge land grants to the railway companies, etc., and we have been working on the job ever since. The first donation was the small matter of a whole inland empire turned over to the Canadian Pacific Railway. Fair minded people, however, have little criticism to offer in connection with that transaction for the simple reason that the C. P. R. in agreeing to build a transcontinental road at that time through a then unknown territory took a tremendous chance in that undertaking that the railway experienced great difficulty in financing the proposition in the world's money markets.

But that transaction, be it good or bad, was the thin edge of the wedge, and the Canadian people have during the years that have elapsed since then acquired the habit as above stated of giving tremendous land—and money—grants to any railway outfit that took the trouble to ask for it. The C. N. R. began business on a shoe string, but the people came to the rescue and not only built the road, but piled up a couple of hundred million spare dollars for the promoters as well.

After having acted in this generous fashion for two or three decades we got a notion into our heads that we are paying these self-same companies altogether too much money for the privilege of having our freight transported from point to point. We talk about it for a few years, then spend a barrel of money "investigating" the matter, and then finally decide that the railways must cut the price.

And having accomplished this end, we try to cajole ourselves into the belief that we are forcing the railways to give us what is ours by right. In other words, having financed these railroads from the day of their inception, we think we are making a pretty good deal when we compel them to cut their freight rates, while as a matter of actual fact the roads would need to carry our freight free of charge for a good many years before we get out of them what we originally put into them.

It is ridiculous to force a freight reduction on the one hand—and then turn over fifty million dollars to one of these roads with the other.

What is the Moral of The Jack Kraf Case?

A case abounding with dramatic situations and replete with thrills and sensations far beyond the power of the greatest criminal fictionists came to a close when Jack Krafchenko received sentence in Morden the other day, remarks the Edmonton Capital. As an evidence that the Unseen Thing, whatever it is, that appears to work perpetually against the law breaker is still on the job, the Krafchenko case has been a wonder. Melville Davidson Post has written a remarkable series of stories illustrating how this Unseen Thing works ceaselessly, but he might have found material for an entirely new series in the Krafchenko case; a series in which a hundred accidents conspired to land the murderer, in which it took the combined recitation of seventy witnesses to piece out the main case, and in which every manner of chance appears to have been thrown against the prisoner. A $10 bill found in an automobile, a restauranter who told the murderer he would like to see Jack Kraf, a rope that broke, a policeman who drank too much whiskey, a taxi-cab driver who "got a hunch there was something wrong" and would not meet an appointment. In fact a whole series of accidents appears to have conspired together to land the law breaker. And in the course of his meteoric escapade everyone whom he met on the way appears to have fallen under the spell of a compelling personality to become involved and to be brought to ruin. One man in jail for seven years, another for three and another for two, with two more awaiting trial and one under suspended sentence, with half a dozen families distressed and several proud names hopelessly smirched.

And in the midst of it all, as though to furnish the anti-climax, there is produced a letter from Jack Kraf to his wife and child in which are set out expressions of love, affection and endearment which give a sidelight upon the mental qualities of the man that defies all the characterizations and classifications of the prosecution and the criminologists.

Krafchenko had many of the characteristics which are idealized in the copy-book maxims. He was clever, enterprising, persistent, direct, sober, alert and self-reliant. When Hagel and Westlake were on trial he "lied like a gentleman" although the hopelessness of the perjury must have been obvious even to himself and could not have been prompted by any other impulse than a loyalty to his friends. And he loved his wife and child even to the extent of taking a chance upon his own liberty and life in order to send them a simple and homely letter.

As an evidence that robbery under arms does not pay, the Krafchenko case is absolute. But to attempt to prove from it the ancient theory that the lawbreaker, the desperado and murderer is devoid of the mental qualities which the world admires is simply to explode the theory. Possibly a Chadwick or a Bed Lindsey, had he caught Jack Kraf at the psychological moment, might have made him an Al Jennings.

Just Observations

The allies of the railway interests in the United States congress who are fighting President Wilson propose to fortify the canal to such a degree as to protect it against the world. The best way for the United States to fortify the canal is to offer equal opportunity to the vessels of all nations in the use of the canal, thereby establishing a practical guarantee that no one nation will ever dare attempt to close the canal. The strength of Wilson's position upon the canal question is its simplicity. Strange what a sensation is created when some person dares to mix a little ordinary horse sense with a national administration!

"This is the week when you do not amount to much in this city, whoever you may be, unless you are a horse," says the Calgary Albertan. But there are a lot of yaps in Calgary, who have no chance of their being mistaken for a horse—their ears are too long.

A young man living near Regina is reported to have been shot by a band of Indians. The red men have evidently failed to notice the faint traces of civilization in that locality.
